Scope and Contents Note

Elmore Leonard (1925-2013) is an American author of western and crime fiction. Leonard published 45 novels in addition to short stories and the screenplay adaptations of many of his works.

Leonard was born in Louisiana in 1925 but Leonard’s father worked for General Motors and the family moved frequently, ultimately settling in Detroit in 1934. Leonard graduated from high school and joined the Navy in 1943. He served for 3 years during World War II then enrolled in University of Detroit in 1946. After his graduation in 1950, Leonard worked for the Campbell-Ewald Advertising Agency though he was writing on the side during this time.

Leonard’s novels have been adapted for film and television multiple times, including Quentin Tarantino’s adaptation of Rum Punch, titled “Jackie Brown”; “Get Shorty” and “Be Cool” starring John Travolta as the character Chili Palmer and the FX television adaptation of Leonard’s novels featuring his character Raylan Givens, “Justified” starring Timothy Olyphant.

The Elmore Leonard Archive contains the papers related to Leonard’s personal and professional life. The majority of the collection is comprised of drafts, manuscripts and typescripts of Leonard’s novels, short stories and screen adaptations and the research and notes related to the writing and publication of these works, including unpublished works. Also included in the collection are personal and professional correspondence, legal and contractual documents related to Leonard’s career, biographical information related to Leonard and the Leonard family and realia related to Leonard’s writing career, including typewriters, director’s chairs and awards.

Additional notes and description occur at the beginning of series in the finding aid.

Series VI: Correspondence

This series consists of the correspondence written to and by Elmore Leonard. It has been divided into three categories, General, Personal, and Professional. Each category is organized by the last name of the correspondent, and includes communication both from and to the specific correspondent, meaning Elmore Leonard’s replies are not separated – this was done in an effort to maintain the natural progression of communication. If no last name is evident, correspondents are organized by first name at the end of each subseries.

General Correspondence covers the wide array of correspondence to Elmore Leonard from people not easily identified as having intimately personal or professional relationships with Elmore Leonard, but are still of interest. The General Correspondence includes a variety of correspondence including, fan mail; cards of condolences for the death of Elmore Leonard’s second wife, Joan Lancaster Leonard; cards of condolences for Elmore Leonard’s sickness and death; and holiday cards. Additionally, this subseries contains correspondence to Elmore Leonard from people within the Criminal Justice system, including convicts, police officers, detectives, and lawyers, who were interested in sharing their real life experiences with Elmore Leonard.

The Personal Correspondence subseries includes earlier correspondences, such as some from Elmore Leonard’s time serving in World War II as part of the United States Navy, but the majority of the subseries was written in the 1980s and 1990s and includes letters from both family and friends.

The majority of Elmore Leonard’s correspondence resides within the Professional Correspondence subseries, as he often wrote agents and fellow authors about the business of his career. In addition, Elmore Leonard sometimes corresponded with other notable writers, such as Walker Percy and Allen Ginsberg – these letters, while not specifically about professional business, are included in this subseries. The Professional Correspondence subseries starts with Elmore Leonard’s first foray into publication (the mid-1950s) and continues up until his death in 2013. The bulk of the correspondence was written in the 1980s and 1990s, around the time that Elmore Leonard began to gain international success. Some notable Professional Correspondences are those between Elmore Leonard and his agents, specifically Marguerite Harper and H. N. “Swanie” Swanson, as well as other authors such as George MacDonald, George Higgins, and Dean Koontz.

Series VII: Financial/Legal

This series consists of financial and legal documents and correspondence relating to Elmore Leonard’s career and personal life. The majority of the Financial/Legal series resides in the Professional subseries and includes contracts for both books and film; copyright; tax paperwork; and correspondence about said contracts, royalties, and advances. This correspondence has been kept separate from the Correspondence Series because this correspondence was organized into the Financial/Legal boxes that came to the Archive and deal directly with the Financial and Legal issues of Elmore Leonard’s career. Many of the correspondents have separate folders in the Correspondence Series.

Series IX: Periodicals
The periodicals featuring articles about Elmore Leonard are generally author profiles or reviews of his books or the movies based on his books. Also included are articles on his agent, H. N. Swanson, and a two-part series by Gregg Sutter about doing the research for Elmore Leonard’s novels.
The periodicals in the Advertisements section are principally ads for Elmore Leonard’s books, though there are ads where Leonard is the spokesman for the product, whether that product is an American Express card, Pinpoint brand shirts, or the city of Detroit.
The periodicals in the By Elmore Leonard section feature content written by Leonard. These articles include excerpts from his books, original short stories written for the magazine in which they are published, and opinion editorials.

Series X: Research Files
This series consists of various published materials written by others on a variety of topics. Elmore Leonard was known to conduct extensive research for his novels with the assistance of his friend and researcher, Gregg Sutter. His research interests could be varied, but the research materials in this collection are primarily on crime, law, locales, and people. Elmore Leonard did save newspaper clippings for research, but these have been placed in the Oversize series.

Series XII: Audio/Visual Materials

This series consists of cassette tapes, CDs, DVDs, floppy disks, and VHS tapes. If no official title is available for the item, the listed title is derived from what is written on the item. Each category of media is arranged alphabetically by title with the exception of music, which is arranged alphabetically by artist when the artist is listed. Cassette tapes are divided into three categories: about or featuring Elmore Leonard, music, and research material for his novels. CDs are divided into four categories: music, photographs, works by Elmore Leonard, and the writing process.
DVDs are divided into four categories: film adaptations of Elmore Leonard’s work, research material, screeners, and TV programs or interviews that feature the author. As a prominent writer and member of the Academy, Elmore Leonard received screeners, which are screening copies of Oscar-nominated films. The floppy disks, 3.5” diskettes, are comprised of drafts of Elmore Leonard’s novels. VHS Tapes are divided into three categories: film adaptations of Elmore Leonard’s work, research material for his work, and TV programs or interviews that feature the author.

Series XIII: Realia

This series consists of physical objects from Elmore Leonard’s office. Boxed items are separated into categories: General, Awards, Baseball Memorabilia, Clothing, Commemorative Plates, and Framed Items. The General boxes contain items that are not easily categorized with other items. These items include, but are not limited to, Elmore Leonard’s cell phone, paperweights, hearing aids, plaques, and writing supplies. The Awards boxes contain awards and recognitions that Elmore Leonard received over the course of his career. The Baseball Memorabilia box contains baseballs, some of which are autographed, and baseball cards. Elmore Leonard’s nickname, “Dutch,” was taken in honor of Emil “Dutch” Leonard a left-handed pitcher who specialized in the knuckleball and played for the Brooklyn Dodgers, Washington Senators, Philadelphia Phillies, and Chicago Cubs during his career. The two are distantly related. The Clothing boxes contain samples of Elmore Leonard’s clothing, including hats, shoes, glasses, and shirts. The Commemorative Plates box contains commemorative plates that Elmore Leonard collected but are not related to his career. The Framed Items box contains items framed to be displayed including photographs, articles, and comic strips that mention Elmore Leonard or his books. Some items are too large to be boxed and are thus labeled “Unboxed Items.”
